WHITE PLAINS YOUTH BUREAU, BUNGE AND VOLUNTEER NEW YORK! TEAM UP FOR SECOND ANNUAL BUNGE KIDS SAFETY DAY ON AUGUST 4

White Plains Day Campers to Learn Safety Lessons Taught by Leading Local Businesses and Organizations

WHITE PLAINS, NEW YORK – Summer vacation is a time for kids to have fun, but they also face a greater risk of getting hurt when school is out. On Tuesday, August 4th, the White Plains Youth Bureau, Bunge and Volunteer New York! will team up to bring the second annual Bunge Kids Safety Day to more than 180 kids, ages 6-11, in the city's Bits N Pieces Day Camp to help them stay safe.

Coach and speaker John O'Leary (www.risingabove.com), who at age nine suffered burns on 98 percent of his body, will give an inspiring talk to campers, counselors and staff to start the day. Mike Snow, Global Safety Director for Bunge, will bring Bunge's signature "Stand for Safety" message to the kids – why safety matters more than anything else, simple steps we can all take to look out for ourselves and others, and how everyone can be a safety leader.

The kids will then receive hands-on safety lessons covering a range of topics, including passenger and pedestrian safety, CPR safety, electrical safety, fire safety, first aid, home-alone safety, internet safety, sun safety, playground safety, nature safety and hydration.

The White Plains Youth Bureau, Bunge and Volunteer New York! are pleased to be joined by the City of White Plains, Con Edison, the American Heart Association, the Bedford Fire Department, AAA Northeast, White Plains Hospital and TransCare. These "Partners in Safety" will create a fun and engaging day that will help youth stand for safety at school, at home and at play. Bunge Kids Safety Day was developed with resources and support from the Progressive Agriculture Foundation (www.progressiveag.org), which provides safety and health education for children in communities throughout North America.

“The well-being of our children is of utmost importance to the City of White Plains. We want them to feel safe in their homes and in their community. This event is a wonderful opportunity for them to learn skills that can be lifesaving and meet inspiring individuals who have so much to teach them,” said Mayor Tom Roach.

Youth Bureau Director Frank Williams said, “It takes a village to create a healthy and safe city. Bunge Corporation and Volunteer New York! have been great partners in helping to create and maintain a safe White Plains.”

“Bunge stands for safety at work, at home, and in the community,” said Mike Snow, Bunge Global Safety Director. “We are excited to join forces again with the White Plains Youth Bureau, Volunteer New York! and our other dedicated partners to bring our ‘Stand for Safety’ message to the kids and teach them important lessons about how to be safe.”

“We applaud Bunge and its employees who are volunteering to incorporate these potentially life-saving lessons into a fun-filled camp day for youth,” said Alisa Kesten, Executive Director of Volunteer New York! “The company is such a strong community champion of volunteerism all year-round, but on August 4th you should know that Volunteer New York! will Stand for Safety, right beside Bunge in full support.”

About THE WHITE PLAINS YOUTH BUREAU

The White Plains Youth Bureau has a rich 44-year history of providing children and youth ages 5 through 24, with the tools they need to become good citizens, and to develop the skills needed to become competent leaders of the 21st century. The Youth Bureau provides opportunities for today’s youth to apply their energy and skills thus enabling them to believe in their future and themselves.
